Who is Allah and where can we find him?

We talked about how an author of the book doesn't look like the book cover so the creator of the world doesn't look like anything already in the world.

We talked about how Allah is the God that Muslims believe in. We must never draw Allah as no-one knows what he looks like.

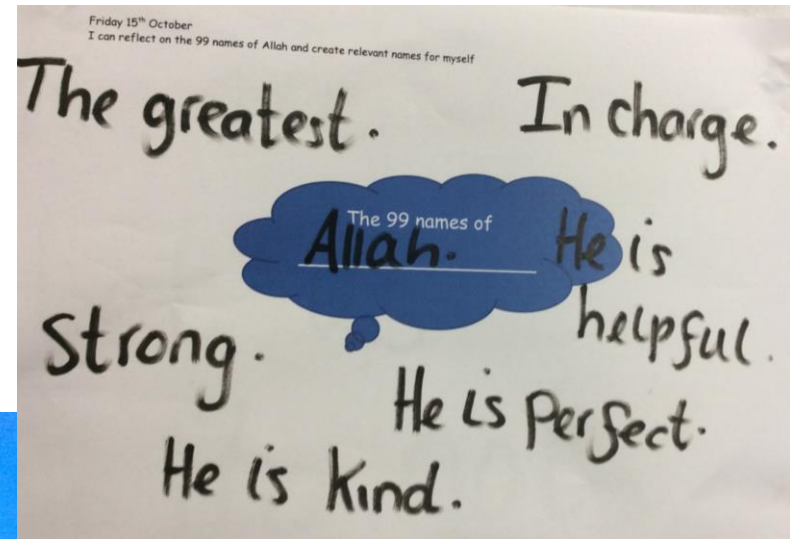

Some of us were a little bit cross that Muslims say Allah is a man because if no-one knows what he looks like, then why couldn't it be a woman?

99 Names of Allah

Muslims recite the 99
names of Allah and go to Paradise.

We had a go at saying some of the names in Arabic, it was tricky!

The letters don't look like ours (Arabic writing)

Arabic is also read right to left and not right to left.

We decided to make names about things that we are special and known for

What I have learnt before:

- People have their own beliefs.
- Some people follow a set religion.
- People have things that are important to them, for some people this is their beliefs.

Knowledge within Islam

Islam is a religion and those who follow it are known as Muslims,

Muslims do not draw Allah or the Prophet, but often use calligraphy to say what God is like.

The Shahadah is usually said a few times each day. It is said at birth as the first words a baby hears, and Muslims aim for these to be the last words they say before death.

The 99 names of Allah. Each name describes something different about what Allah is like, including: forgiver, light and the source of peace.
