How should we care for others and the world?

Ask

"Jewish people and Christians believe in a God and that he created the world but they have different ways of saying it."

First, we thought about the fact that Christians believe that each person is valuable and unique. We designed slogans to remind us of these beliefs.

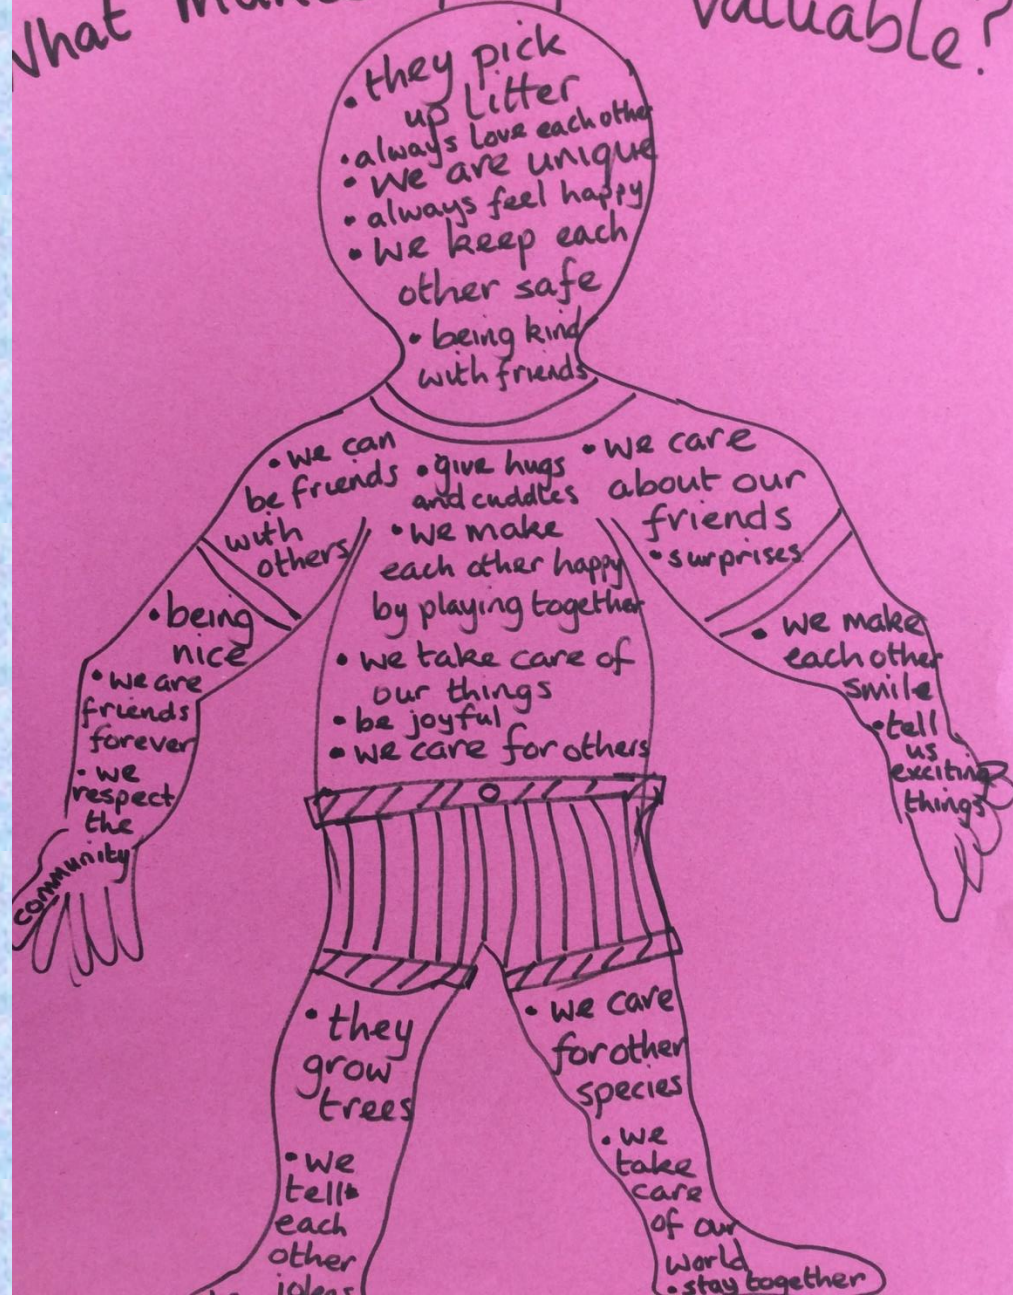

"I think that we should all think that everyone is valuable and that we should care for them."

"Without our world, we wouldn't be here."

What makes people valuable?

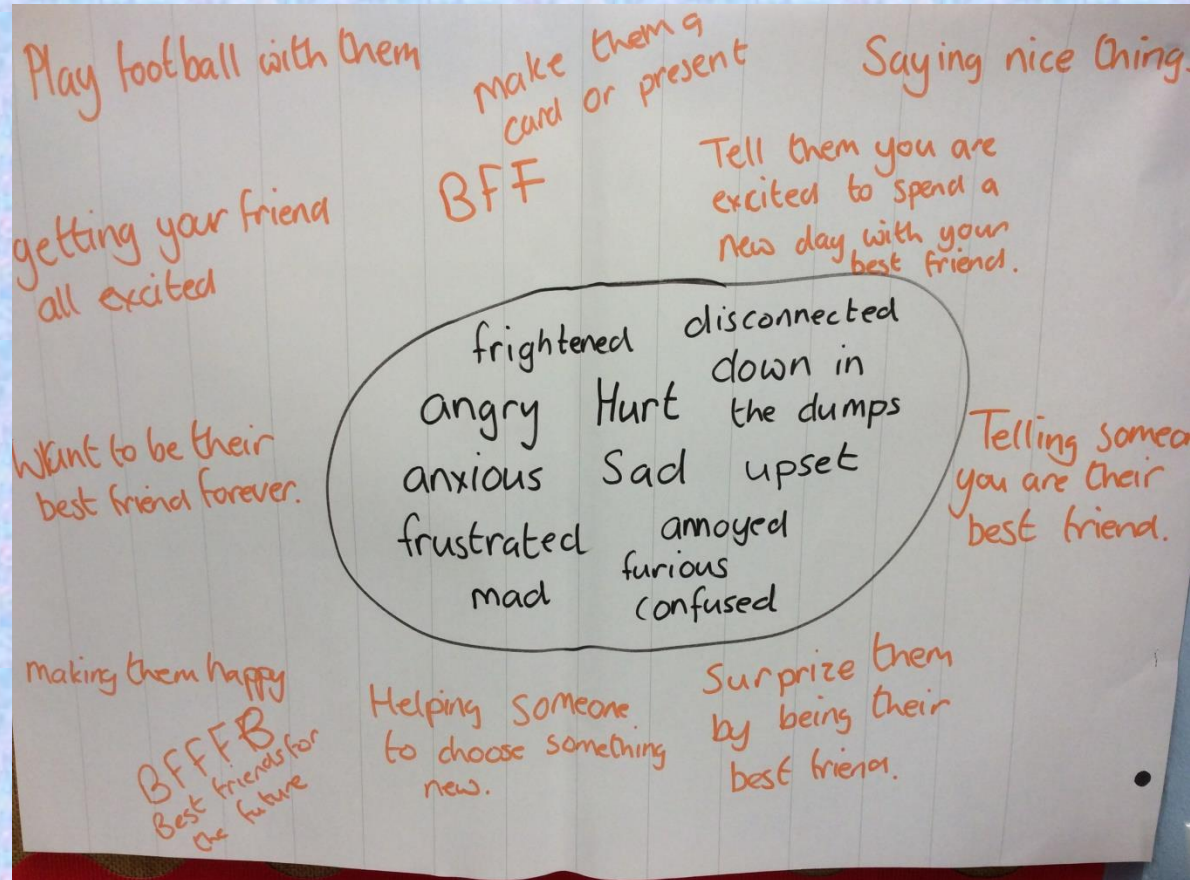

We thought about what makes people valuable – there are so many different ways!

“It’s really good to be kind to your friends because they will always be there to play with and to make you smile.”

“Growing trees and looking after the planet is a good thing to do and that is valuable because we need our planet.”

We thought about how we feel when someone is mean to us. Then we thought about ways in which we could show someone that we care about them.

"It makes me feel angry like I want to do payback but I don't want to be mean."

"I feel frustrated because I wish they didn't do it to me."

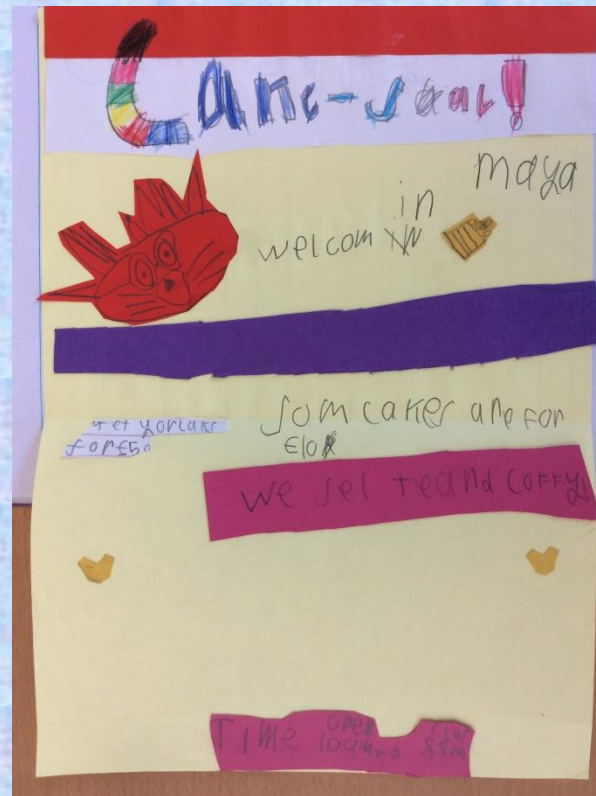

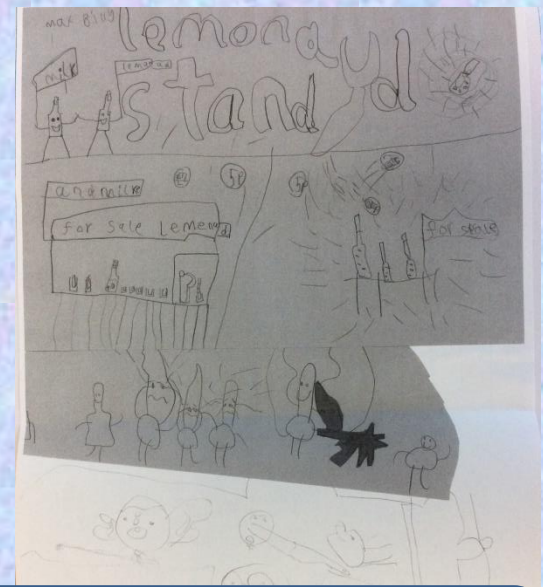

"I feel disconnected."

"You could play with your friend and tell them they are your best friend forever."

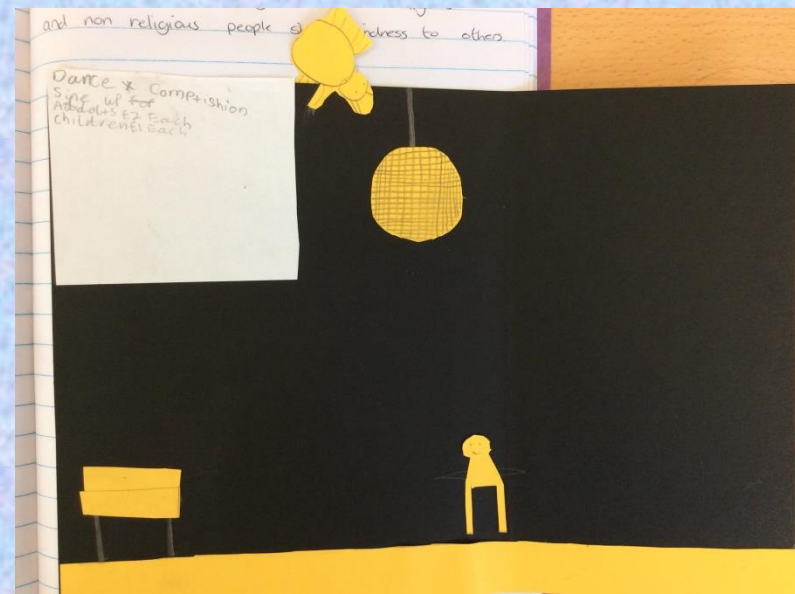

"You could make them a card."

"I would say nice things to them to make them happy."

We considered different ways in which people show that they care and listened to the story of the Good Samaritan. We found out that many people support a charity to help people who are less fortunate than us. We designed our own charity posters to give the School Council some ideas for next year.

"The Samaritan saw others walk past but when he saw the injured man, he didn't walk past and even tried to make him better."

Judaism teaches that God created the world but God let man (us) be in charge of it.

Being thankful for the world we live in is something every person is able to experience regardless of their beliefs, religious or not.

Some Christians believe that God created the world in seven days.

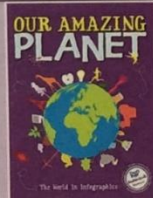

Some people believe that God didn't create the world and that it was a product of the 'Big Bang'.
