The Creation Story

Identify core beliefs; give examples of how stories show what people believe.
Give examples of how people use stories to guide beliefs an actions.

We began by considering whether we could ask huge questions. Then we used a range of sources to find out what Christians believe about how the World was created. We enjoyed working together to create our artwork.

"It's good to ask big questions because they help us learn."
"We could look in the Bible to help us answer the question."

We worked together in small groups to create our own unique artwork to represent what Christians believe.

"We could ask a Christian what they believe."

"We could do a Google search."

We created a story map of The Creation Story to help us when thinking about why it might be important to Christians.

"It might help them think about where the animals and plants came from."

"It tells Christians about God."

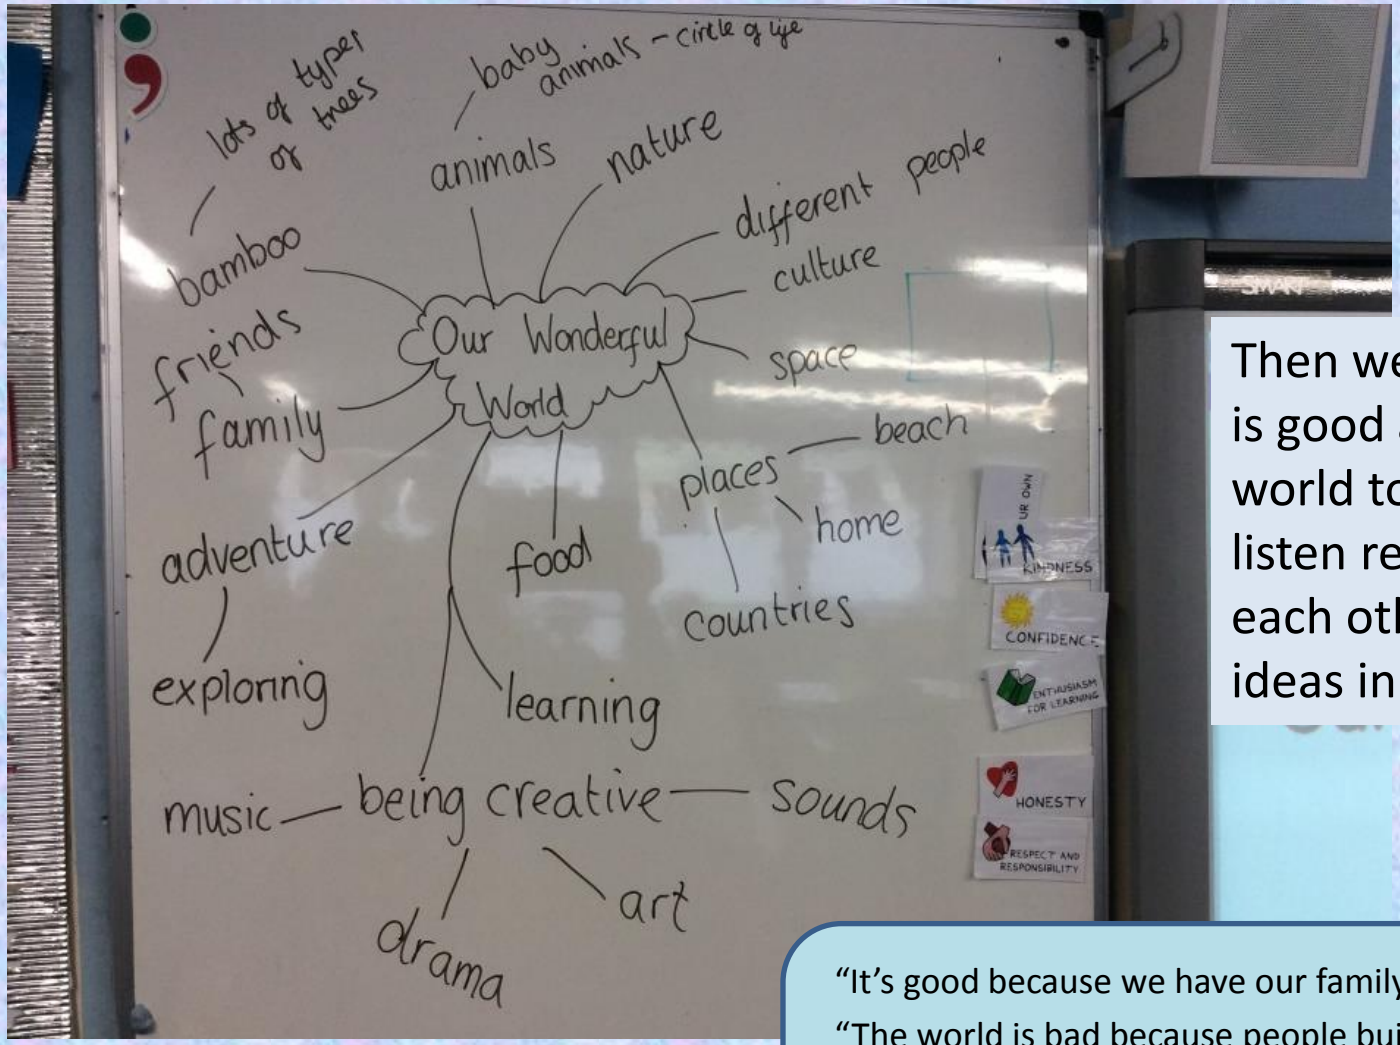

We thought carefully about the question ‘How do Christians say thank you?’ and learnt about Harvest Festival.

“They might say a prayer, like ‘Dear God, thank you for the food.’”

“They might take some fresh fruit and vegetables to the Church to say thank you.”

Then we reflected on what is good and bad in our world today. We had to listen really carefully to each other's thoughts and ideas in 'Reflection Alley'!

"It's good because we have our family."

"The world is bad because people build cities everywhere and don't let the grass grow."

"Good because there are so many animals."

"The world is so bad because people litter everywhere."

We shared all of our ideas to create a map of 'Our wonderful world'.
